

Recipes from Real Stew by Clifford A. Wright through permission of Harvard Common Press, Boston, MA. Copyright 2002. All rights reserved.

White Bean, Rice, and Potato Stew
from the Aragon Province of Spain
(Makes 4 to 6 servings)

In medieval times, the kingdom of Aragon was joined to Catalonia and formed one of the mightiest of Mediterranean powers. Today Aragon is a region of Spain, and the food of Aragon is simple and rustic. This preparation is called recao de Binéfar, named after a small town northwest of Lerida. This stew should be somewhat soupy by the end of the cooking time, so if it isn't, pour in a little water. Some cooks also add slices of cooked sausage or cooked ham.

1 cup (1/2 pound) dried white beans, picked over, rinsed, soaked in water to cover overnight, and drained
1 quart water
1 medium-large onion, chopped
6 large garlic cloves, finely chopped
1 bay leaf
3 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
3/4 pound boiling potatoes, peeled and diced
2-1/4 teaspoons salt
1/2 cup medium-grain rice, such as Calarosa
1 teaspoon sweet paprika

1. Place the beans in a large saucepan and add 3 cups of the water, the onion, garlic, bay leaf, and olive oil. Bring to a boil and then reduce the heat to low. Cover and simmer for 1 hour.
2. Add the potatoes, salt, and cook until the potatoes are almost tender, about 2 minutes. Add the rice and paprika, bring to a boil, and return the heat to low. Cover and cook until the rice is tender, about 15 minutes. Add the remaining 1-cup of water to make the stew soupy, if necessary.
3. Remove the stew from the heat and let stand, uncovered, for 5 minutes before serving.